1.1. Message from the president of SARU

Mr. M. Alexander (President of SARU)

Ladies and gentlemen, coaches, players, administrators, and members of our rugby family, Youth Weeks stand as the biggest schools' rugby tournament in the world, a stage unmatched in scale, tradition and impact. It is more than a competition; it is the conveyor belt of South Africa's elite rugby pipeline, the place where dreams take shape and futures are forged.

For thousands of young rugby players, this is the moment they have worked toward for years. And for us as a rugby nation, this is where we witness the next generation of Springboks begin their journey. Ninety-nine percent of our Springboks have come through this pathway, a statistic that speaks not only to the talent of our youth, but to the strength and integrity of the system that supports them.

But none of this happens by accident.

We pay deep tribute to the school coaches across the country, the men and women who give their time, their expertise, and their hearts to developing young rugby players. They are the first mentors, the first selectors, the first tacticians and often the first to believe in a child's potential. Their work is unseen by many but felt by all. We are extremely grateful for their dedication, their sacrifice, and their unwavering commitment to excellence.

To SASRA, thank you for administering one of the most important components of our rugby ecosystem. Your stewardship ensures that Youth Weeks remain a model of fairness, opportunity, and development. Your work protects the integrity of the pathway and strengthens the foundation on which South African rugby continues to thrive.

U13 CRAVEN WEEK & ACADEMY WEEK

As we gather for this year's Youth Weeks, let us celebrate not only the talent on the field, but the system, the people and the values that make South African rugby a global force. May these young athletes play with pride, humility, and passion, knowing they are part of a legacy far bigger than themselves.

This is where champions begin. This is where the future is shaped. This is the heartbeat of South African rugby.

Mark Alexander

1.2. Message from South African Schools Rugby

Mr. K. Grove (Chairperson SASRA)

Welcome to the 2026 Under 13 Craven Week Tournament hosted by the Free State

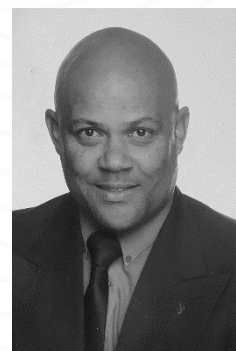

Primary Schools Rugby Association. On behalf of SASRA, I extend a warm welcome as we gather to celebrate one of the proud traditions of South African schoolboy rugby. The U13 Craven week is a celebration of friendship, teamwork, discipline, courage, and sportsmanship. For many of our young players, this week will become a lifelong memory — a moment where dreams are born, character is shaped, and lifelong bonds are formed.

We are honoured to welcome the finest Under 13 rugby talent from across South Africa to the Free State. May this week showcase the values that make schoolboy rugby such a powerful force in developing young people: respect for teammates and opponents, humility in victory, dignity in defeat, and pride in representing your province and school.

To the hosting school, Grey: thank you for availing your beautiful facilities to the Free state primary school rugby association. Your generosity has allowed us to uphold the standards the primary school rugby fraternity has become accustomed too.

To the players: play with passion, enjoy every moment, and remember that wearing your jersey is a privilege earned through hard work and commitment. To the coaches and officials: thank you for your dedication to developing the next generation of young leaders and springboks.

And to our supporters and families: your encouragement and sacrifice make opportunities like this possible. We wish every team a successful, safe, and memorable tournament. May the spirit of rugby unite us all as we celebrate the game we love.

Mr. W. Wheeler (Chairperson of FSPRA)

It is with immense pride and excitement that we welcome every player, parent, guardian, coach, manager, supporter and rugby enthusiast to the prestigious U/13 Craven Week and Academy Week Tournament.

On behalf of the Free State Primary Schools Rugby Association, we are honoured to host this incredible celebration of youth rugby, a tournament that represents passion, commitment, sportsmanship and the future of South African rugby.

The Free State has always been a province deeply rooted in rugby tradition. Rugby is more than just a sport in our communities; it is part of who we are. 3. History

3.1. History of the hosting School: Grey College

Grey College Primary and Pre-Primary Schools are both remarkable, and from the foundation in 1859, Grey College is today one of the leading South African public schools for boys aged 4–13 years. We pride ourselves on providing an exceptional, all-round education that enables each boy to try everything on offer, allowing them to find out what they really enjoy and are able to excel at.

The capacity to engage pupils at many different levels is central to life at Grey College Primary, and we offer countless opportunities across many different learning contexts, both inside and outside the classroom. Talented and committed staff work with our pupils to achieve these goals. The school is grounded in the strength of relationships that are the bedrock of all great communities.

Grey College Primary is tremendously diverse in terms of the academic, cultural, and sporting backgrounds of its boys, and we celebrate this diversity. When one stands still, one is, in effect, going backwards. Grey College Primary is committed to building on its legacy — to look forward without losing sight of what has come before.

Grey College, a distinguished South African institution, is an exclusive parallel medium school for boys. In 1855, Sir George Grey, the governor of the Cape Colony, made a philanthropic gesture by donating funds towards the establishment of a higher education institution during his visit to the Orange Free State. This generous contribution significantly bolstered the capital investment of Grey College, which officially commenced operations on 17 January 1856 under the leadership of Mr Andrew Murray as its inaugural headmaster.

Initially established as a combined campus, Grey College underwent a pivotal transition in 1950, resulting in the separation of its primary and secondary campuses. Notably, esteemed leaders such as Mr CCF Bornman, Steve Strydom, Chris Bester, and Lindsay Mould laid the groundwork that facilitated Grey College's expansion and advancement as a preeminent educational institution. In 2015, Mr Jurie Geldenhuys assumed the role of headmaster, overseeing the school's continued growth and development.

Throughout its illustrious history, Grey College has consistently remained at the forefront of South Africa's broad-spectrum educational landscape, boasting a rich tradition and enduring legacy. Under the stewardship of Mr Jock Meiring, who served as headmaster from 1922 to 1948, Grey College was heralded as a microcosm of excellence. In 1993, the institution proudly welcomed its first generation of learners of colour, a testament to its commitment to inclusivity and transformation through its parallel medium policy.

Since its inception, Grey College has cultivated a culture of resilience and altruism among its students, garnering recognition and reverence for their remarkable attributes. The school's distinguished reputation was eloquently captured in a newspaper column, where an attendee of an Old Grey dinner envisioned the institution as a beacon of unity in South Africa. The curriculum's unique structure, accommodating both English and Afrikaans instruction, has yielded exceptional results, with Grey College alumni prominently contributing to society, particularly in the Free State and the Old Transvaal regions.

In 1891, during a visit to Bloemfontein, Cecil John Rhodes lauded Grey College for fostering a sense of camaraderie and promoting its esteemed values among its alumni. Despite its humble beginnings, Grey College has persevered in upholding its core values, thanks to the visionary leadership of figures like Dr Johannes Brill and Mr Jock Meiring, who navigated the challenges posed by conflicts such as the Anglo-Boer War and the World Wars, as well as political upheavals.

Sir George Grey's visionary philanthropy laid the foundation for Grey College's enduring legacy, as evidenced by his personal contribution towards its establishment and his aspiration for the institution to perpetually uphold noble values. The Grey trademark, epitomized by its emblem derived from Sir George Grey's family crest, commands respect both locally and internationally, with the school's motto, "Stabilis," symbolising its commitment to stability and excellence.

The tradition of Grey College serves as a cornerstone for its ongoing prosperity, shaping the character and achievements of its students. Noteworthy alumni, such as Morne Du Plessis, a Springbok rugby player and matriculant of 1966, attest to the motivating influence of tradition in upholding the school's standards and fostering personal growth.

Grey College enjoys widespread renown as one of the country's premier educational institutions, with its alumni achieving remarkable success on both national and international levels. These Old Greys have played a pivotal role in enhancing the school's prestigious reputation over the years, embodying the enduring legacy of Grey tradition.

Loyalty to Grey tradition serves as a defining characteristic of its alumni, fostering enduring bonds of camaraderie and friendship. While the school has undergone renovations and modernisations to adapt to evolving needs, it remains steadfast in preserving its longstanding traditions, which permeate every facet of the Grey College campus.

In conclusion, "Vive la Grey" stands as a testament to the enduring legacy and unwavering commitment to excellence that defines Grey College, ensuring its continued prominence in South African education.

Vive la Grey!

3.2. History of the Craven week:

The Under-13 Craven Week is one of the most respected primary school rugby tournaments in South Africa and has become an important part of the country's rugby development pathway.

Origins of the u/13 Craven Week

The original senior Craven Week was founded in 1964 and named after the legendary Springbok administrator Danie Craven. The idea itself came from former Springbok Piet Malan, who wanted school rugby to form part of South African rugby celebrations.

The u/13 Craven Week for primary schools officially started in 1972 in Potchefstroom — only eight years after the first senior Craven Week.

From the beginning, the goal was:

- to identify young rugby talent,
- to promote provincial rugby at primary-school level,
- and to develop rugby values such as sportsmanship, discipline and teamwork.

Why the Tournament is Special

The u/13 Craven Week is unique because very few countries have a national rugby showcase for players this young. Provincial unions from across South Africa — and sometimes neighbouring countries such as Namibia and Zimbabwe — send representative teams to compete over several days.

The tournament has traditionally focused on:

- skill development,
- enjoyment of rugby,
- exposure to high-level competition,
- and identifying future elite players.

A notable feature is that many matches are played barefoot at younger levels, emphasizing handling and skill rather than pure physicality.

Famous Players Who Played u/13 Craven Week

Many future Springboks first appeared on the national radar at u/13 Craven Week. According to historical reports, at least 48 Springboks had participated in the tournament by 2012.

Some famous names include:

- Fourie du Preez
- Morné Steyn
- Heinrich Brüssow
- Patrick Lambie
- Peter Grant

For many young players, u/13 Craven Week becomes the first step toward:

1. u/16 Grant Khomo Week,
2. u/18 Craven Week,
3. SA Schools selection,
4. provincial academies,
5. and eventually professional rugby.

Growth and National Importance

Over the decades the tournament has grown enormously:

- more provinces and unions participate,
- matches are professionally organized,
- scouts and coaches closely monitor players,
- and the event receives extensive media coverage.

The week now regularly hosts around 1 000 players, coaches and support staff.

Hosting the tournament is considered prestigious for schools and unions. Famous rugby schools and unions across South Africa have hosted the event over the years, including:

- Grey College
- Maritzburg College
- Selborne College

Cultural Impact in South African Rugby

The Craven Week system is deeply embedded in South African rugby culture. For many children, being selected for their provincial u/13 team is considered one of the highest honours in primary school rugby.

The tournament also:

- strengthens provincial pride,
- creates lifelong friendships,
- exposes players to different rugby cultures,
- and often becomes a family tradition.

In rugby communities across South Africa, “playing Craven Week” carries major prestige and often opens future opportunities in schooling and rugby development.

Modern u/13 Craven Week

Today the tournament is organized under the structures connected to South African Rugby Union and remains one of the flagship youth rugby events in the country.
